Home Mission Sunday

Evangelii Gaudium: "The Joy of the Gospel"

This Sunday has been for a long time known as "Home Mission Sunday" when we recognise our need to read the Holy Scriptures at home and to pray with them regularly. This is especially true of the teachings of Jesus in the Gospels and of the letters of early Christianity, including those of St Paul. Pope Francis has changed the title to reflect his own encyclical about the importance of the Word of God. We hear the scriptures proclaimed at Mass each day, and we are asked to ponder the words contained in them. At our parish the priest always gives a short homily (during the week) and a longer one on Sundays in which he seeks to make what we hear relevant to our faith and in our lives nowadays. The books of the bible have a message for us today. The church believes that Christ is truly present when his words are proclaimed and preached. So let us listen reverently and with full, conscious and active attention to what we hear. Our excellent readers have made a commitment to their ministry and receive training to do this. Our sound system is specially designed to make hearing the word as clear as possible.

There is a retiring collection today to support the work of our diocese in spreading the good news of the Lord. Thank you for your generosity.

Fr. Andrew SJ

Response to the Psalm Today: Praise the Lord, who raises the Poor.

Queen Elizabeth II R.I.P. Messages of condolence may be written in the special book which is on display in the church. The book will be sent to Buckingham Palace next weekend.

Sister Eugenia, who has served faithfully as our sacristan for more than twenty years, has stepped down from that role, but will continue to be a regular participant in parish activities, especially our services in church. On behalf of the whole parish I express our deepest thanks for her magnificent dedication and willing service to everyone in that role, as well as for her other parish activities here: London Citizens, "At your Word, Lord", "Growing in Faith", Justice and Peace group, prayer groups, Communion to the sick, and numerous small but significant interactions with parishioners and visitors.

We need a new Sunday sacristan. The suitable candidate would be on site every Sunday morning at 7.15am and stay until 12:15pm, would need to have some knowledge of what the role requires, would be willing to have a safeguarding check. Salary: London Living wage (negotiable depending on work required). Additional hours in Holy Week. The role would suit a college/university student or any adult over 18 with the appropriate qualities. Because the role would include administering the Eucharist we can only appoint a Roman Catholic to this position. Could everyone please pray that the Holy Spirit sends us the right person for this significant "front line" role in our parish.

SYNOD: next steps for St Ignatius Parish.

Fr. Andrew will hold two evening meetings during October and will invite you to attend so that we can together consider the future direction and ministry of our parish, with a special focus on what goes well and where we can all improve as directed in charity by the Holy Spirit. Please watch out for further news of these meetings.
